REACHOUT

is a counselling and educational institution working against racism, right-wing extremism and anti-Semitism. In our educational work, we focus on all forms of racism. Our aim is to raise awareness of the extent and consequences of racist discrimination and violence and to strengthen those affected. Through further training, team support, intervision and coaching, we support other professionals in their work.

WITH WHO WE WORK

Our services are aimed in particular at social work projects, self-organisations, schools and daycare centres, grassroots initiatives and volunteers, educational institutions as well as cultural and religious institutions.

HOW WE WORK

We work with participatory processes that focus on the needs of the needs of the participants. participant-oriented, participatory and process-oriented. Methodologically, we use exercises for self-reflection, changes of perspective, conflict management and strengthening the competence to act. We develop needs-based support for specific target groups.

OUR TOPICS

♦ Empowerment:

Own experiences with racism and discrimination are addressed in a „safer space“. The focus is on mutual support. The aim is to promote a resilient approach to racism and discrimination and to broaden strategies for action.

♦ Racist bullying:

This is about raising awareness of racist bullying and defining the specificities of this particular form of bullying. We offer intervention techniques and support in the development of individual and group-related action strategies based on concrete examples of praxis.

♦ Anti-racism and anti-discrimination:

Participants will be given an overview of forms, dimensions and areas of racial discrimination. The focus is on the exchange of work and everyday experiences, as well as possibilities of racism-critical and conscientious action.

♦ From Prejudice to Racism

Together, we ask us how prejudices are linked to racism and how they affect our work and our everyday lives. Based on examples from our daily lives, we develop different approaches for acting in a prejudice-conscious manner.

♦ Perceiving whiteness | acting anti-racist:

With methods of self-reflection, we address the following questions: How does being white affect my biography? What role does (my) whiteness play in my (working) everyday life? In which structures and in which historical context is whiteness embedded?

FORMATS

We offer our educational modules in the following formats:

- ♦ workshops (4-6 hours);
